Lightening Talk #3: Technical Challenges

The third Lighting Talk is on technical challenges you have encountered or you foresee in your project. In this 5-minute powerpoint presentation, you will focus on a single technical challenge that your team has faced, and how you have overcome it. You can include one slide to list other technical challenges without details.

If you have not faced a technical challenge yet, possible reasons could include (1) that your project is trivial to implement, or (2) you haven't taken the time to dig in deep yet:

- If it's the former, we will need to talk to see if the project requirements need to be revised significantly. It is better to discover this now than during the design review at the end of the semester.
- If it's the latter, please find the time this week to make progress on the technical side of your project.

The original plan was that all teams will give an actual 5-minute talk in class, during the two weeks following the Spring Break. However, due to the cancellation of in-person lectures during these two weeks, we will revert back to the old submission format as follows: each team will prepare a 5-minute power point presentation with annotated voice commentary and slide transitions; all members of the group should participate to narrate the presentation; please say your name before starting your voice commentary.

The third Lighting Talk is due on 4/5 Sunday. Only one submission is needed from each team.
